CANADIAN FILMS AT IMPERIAL WAR MUSEUM

JUL 29 1970
MONTREAL

The Canadian Film Archives has prepared a series of six special programmes for the Imperial War Museum in London, England. All the films depict Canada's involvement in the two World Wars and the effects of war on Canadians. Included in the series are several examples of the NFB's classic World in Action series (produced under John Grierson's supervision from 1940-45), the 1928 Canadian Feature Carry On, Sergeant directed by Bruce Bairnsfather, the 1935 compilation Lest We Forget, two of Norman McLaren's wartime propaganda films and Arthur Kelly's This Most Gallant Affair. It is also hoped to include Don Shebib's Good Times! Bad Times! which shows the impact of war on those who survived. The programmes are being presented with the collaboration of the National Film Board and private producers.

As part of an exchange agreement, the Imperial War Museum is selecting a series of propaganda films from its own collection for presentation at the National Film Theatre next fall. Included in the series will be some of the Nazi propaganda films which have remained largely unseen since 1945.

800 FILMS FOR FILM STUDY

A new edition of 500 Films for Screen Education has been promised for some time. It is now to be superceded by a new volume: 800 Films for Film Study. With 800 titles, listed in alphabetical order, each with credits, source, and a description intended to help the film-teachers, it attempts to cover the history of the cinema from its earliest days up to the present, relying on films available in Canada. Additional indexes list films by countries, film-makers, genres, and subjects.

The price, inclusive of postage, will be $6.00 ($5.00 for CFI members).

NEW CATALOGUES

Four new catalogues have been prepared covering the following areas: Space, Political Science, Education, Labour and Management. The last named, lists over 350 films. Stephen Rothwell, Programme Director of the National Science Film Library, announces the completion of its most recent publication Films on Space. This catalogue of films on astronomy, astronautics, rocket technology and related subjects is a revised and updated version of the catalogue published in 1966.

The 200 film catalogue lists films from the purely technical to historical including the Apollo 11 and Apollo 12 lunar missions.

A new catalogue is now available listing films from National Health and Welfare. It may be obtained free of charge from: Information Services, Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa 3, Ontario.
